

Jim Strozier co-founded Consensus Planning in 1991 and has facilitated its growth into one of the leading planning and landscape architectural firms in the Southwest. His focus is on the integration of zoning regulations, environmental sustainability principles, and urban design to achieve our client's goals and make our communities better. This commitment results in added value to each project through timely approvals, high quality design, and exceptional market performance. Jim is a dynamic public speaker with extensive experience representing and obtaining approval for a wide variety of projects before public boards, commissions, and councils. He is registered with the American Institute of Certified Planners (#6432) and was inducted into the AICP College of Fellows in 2018.
